

Building Community Through Our Stories

Implicit Bias in Education

During this 60-90 minute session, participants will learn more about implicit racial bias, the attitudes and stereotypes that affect our understanding, and decisions and actions in an unconscious manner. The presentation and discussion will focus on where and how implicit bias surfaces within education settings, the impact on student outcomes, and strategies to counteract it.

Storytelling as an Empathy-building Tool

This 90-minute facilitated dialogue will help school communities experience the trust-building and increased understanding of the 'other' that occurs through storytelling. An overview of the complete dialogue process (of which storytelling is an early stage component) and how it is being used to increase parent engagement and strengthen staff/student relationships also will be discussed.
