

Focus Group Invitation to Clinicians

Physicians, nurses, & other practitioners who give direct bedside care

We'd like to invite you to participate in a focus group that is part of a project to improve cybersecurity in health care. The Federal Department of Health & Human Services is seeking advice from the health care industry around the country on how to promote cybersecurity in our sector.

As part of that effort, a focus group will be conducted among Health Practitioners in Denver, on June 7th, from 6pm-8pm at the Colorado Medical Society, Stapleton conference room, 7351 Lowry Blvd., Denver, CO 80230. The aim of these 2-hour discussions will be to learn more about awareness, practices, and attitudes towards cybersecurity.

Participants in this important effort will help inform and shape the plans and outreach efforts of HHS as it works to address health care cybersecurity issues.

Unfortunately, due to Federal regulations on this type of project, financial incentives cannot be provided, but there will be refreshments. These focus group sessions are being organized by a research firm working with the government.

*Please arrive at the group site 15 minutes before the group start to allow check-in and fill in screener forms. The whole process, from arrival to departure, should not take more than 2.5 hours.

This is a great opportunity to weigh in on an important issue facing our industry today. It's important – and it should be interesting too. We hope you'll agree to join in this effort.

Focus group participants will be capped at 15 people, so please contact us to RSVP.

If you'd like to attend, please contact CISA405d@hhs.gov
