Jui-Lan Su was born and raised in Taiwan. After graduated from University with a Bachelor's degree in life science, Jui-Lan came to the United States for graduate studies. She spent more than 30 years in biomedical research after earning a Master degree in Entomology. In 2009 she retired from GSK pharmaceutical company.

Jui-Lan started out acrylic painting in representational style. Now her artwork includes mixed media, modern and abstract in styles. Jui-Lan's love of gardening, museum going and blind contour drawing are the bases for many of her paintings: paintings on flowers and gardens were inspired by her own garden. Jui-Lan"s recent mixed media "The hanging garden" was inspired by Suzanne Jackson's "In Nature's Way" at Whitney Biennial 2024. Painting can keep the brain active in many ways. Jui-Lan enjoys exploring painting and art making in her golden years.
