

MA Land Court Deploys Public Access Website for Survey Data Retrieval

The Land Court Department of the Massachusetts Trial Court launched its Public Access Website in June 2023. It is a self-service on-line site (link: Land Court Search \(state.ma.us\)) allowing users to access the electronically stored records of the Survey Division at no cost. The records consist of survey and Land Court plans, survey data and calculations, and correspondence pertaining to registered land throughout the Commonwealth.

Since it was established in 1898, the Land Court Survey Division has maintained hard copy registered land survey records. Those hard copy records continue to be available for public review at the Land Court Survey Division in the Suffolk County Courthouse, 3 Pemberton Square, Boston, 4th Floor.

Many of the survey records created after 2000 are also kept electronically. These electronic records are now searchable and retrievable online by using the Public Access Website. Users can enter values in search fields such as the Land Court case number, plan number, city/town and street name or any combination thereof. The search results return a list of the available data for viewing and downloading. Records not found electronically may be requested by email for a nominal charge, paid for online and delivered by email. Follow the link to: Order a Survey Plan Reproduction | Mass.gov.

The Public Access Website also has a map search feature. A user can search on a property address to access the MassGIS parcel mapping. The search results display both the parcel and the property record information based upon the city/town assessor's data as reported to MassGIS.

The MassGIS parcel mapping displays all properties in the Commonwealth, both recorded and registered land. Registered land is under the jurisdiction of the Land Court. Recorded land data may be found at the appropriate Registry of Deeds location or website where the property is located. Registered land information may be found on-site and online at the Massachusetts Land Court Survey Division as well as at the Registration District of the Land Court within the county Registry of Deeds where the property is located.
