

SINCE 95: Second Generation Vietnamese American Experiences as Model Minorities

Join us for this vulnerable and intimate conversation!

A roundtable discussion shedding light on the journeys of second-generation Vietnamese Americans at Mission College. Delving into the intergenerational trauma inherited from their predecessors, exploring the hurdles of assimilation and acculturation, and reflecting on the dual aspects of being labeled the model minority - both advantageous and burdensome.

Hai Nguyen, Professor of History at Mission College

Proud graduate of a California community college and the state university system. Loves a good conversation, sneakers, outdoors, working out, as well as 1990s hip hop and R&B.
