

PRESIDENTIAL MATTERS:

REFLECTING ON RTIME AND WHAT IT MEANS TO SHOW UP FOR THE INDUSTRY

Peter Elliott, CPCU
(PRESIDENT & CHIEF EXECUTIVE OFFICER)

I come away from the RTIME meeting feeling energized. It's exciting to see where the telecom industry is headed, and I'm grateful for our opportunity to provide insurance and other support.

This year, our team showed up in a big way. The Telcom Insurance Group was an event sponsor, and ten of our employees were in attendance. We participated in a panel discussion, attended board meetings, and hosted an industry leader lunch. We also assisted with the FRS Prom Fundraiser (special congratulations to Julie Gogel, who raised an impressive amount on her way to being crowned Queen).

We're proud of our involvement, but since I have not received any feedback, it got me thinking: Is our support making a difference?

While I understand that insurance may not be a favorite topic for many, my goal is to make it feel less daunting and more accessible. What matters most? Is industry support important? What else is needed? These are the questions I have been pondering post-RTIME.

I want to hear from you. If what we do at events or with our insurance program isn't hitting the mark, or if there are ways we can better serve the industry, I would love your feedback. Feel free to send me any thoughts or ideas at pje@telcominsgrp.com. I look forward to hearing from you!
