Roof Services of NY

A Tecta America Company, LLC

When it comes to your roof, constant inspection of both the inside and the outside of your roofing system is necessary.

If you notice water damage to the ceiling or a leak falling to the ground, be sure to immediately fix the problem in order to avoid the following:

Interior Damage: From desks to office furniture to computers, operating machinery, painted walls and lighting fixtures, your roof protects everything below.

Exterior Damage: The roof of your building may not show obvious visible signs of roof leaks, but once you inspect the decking underneath you'll likely find harmful structural damage.

Customers Perception: When clients and customers notice dark stains from water damage on your company ceilings, the perceived value of your business is negatively impacted.

Company Downtime: If a leak is bad enough, you may have to stop operations completely due to the repairs needed before continuing operations.

Utility Bills: Water that leaks through the roof can damage insulation and without proper insulation, inside air will release outdoors and your heating and cooling systems will have to work harder to maintain its temperature.

Long-Term Effects: As a leak spreads across your roof, costly damage is accumulating at each point it reaches. Ultimately, a roof leak left untreated will result in a repair of the roof, which is the most costly treatment of all of them. We are the experts in repairing leaks before they cause serious issues. If you notice water damage on your ceiling or are dealing with dripping water, reach out to our experts for your roofing solutions.
