Question: "While we meet here, in Convention assembled, thousands upon thousands will drop, in foreign lands, from sheer exhaustion and hunger." Which diocesan bishop at which convention in which year said this?

Clue: This convention was held at the Church of the Ascension in Claymont.

Answer: The Rt. Rev. Arthur Raymond McKinstry, fifth bishop of Delaware, at the 161st Annual Convention in 1946, when he noted that the confidence of victory felt in 1945 was strangely lacking in the reality of widespread sorrow and suffering in the aftermath of World War II.
