

Dear friends,

Autumn is my favorite season. I love the fall colors and the crispness in the air. I love opening the windows and turning on the attic fan to sleep under! I love football! And even though the official Thanksgiving holiday is not for a while, cooler weather just seems to make me have more of a spirit of gratitude. So, I was pleased to see that the suggested topic for the sermon this Sunday is Luke 17:11-9. Jesus' lesson on faith is a reminder that we should always give thanks for all of our gifts, because even faith is a gift. If we could earn faith on our own merit, we would never achieve it. Let us all be challenged to thank God for our faith and also for the many other gifts we receive every day.

Blessings,

Julie
