

Dear friends,

This has been a busy week on the news. Another shooting in Texas and the tragic boat fire in California have been overshadowed by the approaching Dorian and the need to prepare for something as unpredictable as the weather! How providential that the lectionary reading for this Sunday is Jeremiah 18:1-11. This offers a word of hope when we are reminded that God is indeed in control, even when the universe seems to be swimming in chaos. Please read the passage to prepare for Sunday in which we will rediscover that, even when bad things happen in life, God is reshaping us for something better.

Julie
