Grant Writing 101

Grant writing is a skilled craft - One that anyone can learn, but one that requires much more than just being able to write well. Strong grant writers, no matter their job title or position, have developed and continually polish a set of skills that help them position their organization for success.

Join us for Grant Writing 101 featuring Michael Fitzsimmons, owner of Fitzsimmons Strategic Consulting in Greeley. Fitzsimmons specializes in fundraising strategies and grant writing for non-profits and small business. The seminar is designed for small business owners interested in gaining the fundamentals of grant seeking and grant writing. Through interaction and talking best practices, you will learn how to:

- Identify prospects.
- Establish relationships with prospective funding organizations and individuals.
- Structure a grant proposal.
- Meet the deadlines and requirements.
- And more!

ABOUT THE PRESENTER

Mr. Fitzsimmons serves as the Resource Development Director for the Evangelical Lutheran Good Samaritan Society, as well as owner of his own consulting business for fundraising management for non-profits, profit organizations and political candidates. He recently received his certification in Fund Raising Management from the Lilly Family School Of Philanthropy, Indiana University's Fund Raising School. He provides fundraising strategies and grant writing experience for his clients. He also provides leadership training for non-profit board of directors.
