

New Health Chiropractic and Therapy, Hamburg, NY

Featured Sonic Vibration Location

www.newhealthny.com ~ 716.649.8200

Dr. Nick Morris DC, drove 2 hours down to Eastern Pennsylvania to demo a Sonic Whole Body Vibration platform. He immediately made the decision to implement Sonic WBV therapy into his practice. He just knew in his 'knower' - that intuitive part of all of us, that Sonic WBV was an effective, non-invasive, holistic treatment option. "It made so much sense to me", says Dr. Nick. "I've been a chiropractor for 15 years and had my own practice since 2011. I started out using Sonic Vibration therapy to mainly assist and enhance my adjustments. But with a family practice, it's developed into more.

"One of the most phenomenal experiences I've had was with a 10 year-old autistic boy. He was hyperactive and non-verbal. The first time his mother brought him in, I wasn't able to work with him and told her it was okay and just to bring him in again soon. The next visit, the child was willing to get on the Sonic Vibration platform. His body seemed to say 'yes' to the machine. His mother and I were both shocked afterward when he hugged me, which is very rare behavior for a child with autism. She was even more stunned when he was able to lie down quietly on my table for an adjustment."

New Health Chiropractic and Therapy is a family practice in more ways than one. Nick's decision to be a chiropractor was influenced by his uncle who is a practicing chiropractor for the past 20 years. His wife, Dr. Lisa Morris, is also a chiropractic physician and focuses on nutrition and weight loss through the Ideal Protein method combined with Sonic WBV and infrared heat. Their three children, ages 13, 11 and 3, routinely enjoy Sonic vibration with chiropractic care, which goes to prove that you're never too young to join the Good Vibe Tribe.

"Patients tend to come in frustrated with their experience after seeing many doctors", says Dr. Morris. He thinks the difference is that he's become good at truly listening. Reading testimonials, it's clear his patients agree. Many write that it's his patience and attention to their needs that has made the difference in their health. Did you see that scene in "A Beautiful Day in the Neighborhood" where Tom Hanks, as Mister Rogers, phones back the troubled reporter? He asks him if he knew who the most important person was to him right now. Mister Rogers says it's the reporter because that's who he's talking to. Dr. Nick may not have watched that scene- but he clearly transmits that to his patients.

