

January Newsletter

Once again, thank you so much for all your positive responses to our Newsletters. With every Newsletter we get more people signed up as Demo Locations, Dealers, and several of you are working towards your free Sonic vibration machine.

The one thing that sets true Sonic WBV as the World's leader in WBV machines is by far the Sonic Wave Technology. While standing or sitting on the sonic machine you are also in a coherent Pulsed Electro Magnetic Field which I feel is the true magic to sonic vibration exercise

Way back in 2005 when I was trying out all the various vibration machines available at the time, there was the mechanical tri-planer machines, the mechanical pivotal machines, and then there was the Goldilocks machine, the original Turbosonic, which worked on the principals of nature utilizing coherent electromagnetic sine wave frequencies and its plane of motion was strictly vertical.

In nature, our human bodies are very tuned into sine waves, we see a spectrum of sign wave frequencies of light and images, and our brains convert those frequencies into images and colors. The same is true of hearing, we hear various sine wave frequencies and it is converted into sounds, speech, and music. The earth, the moon, and all the cosmos function on electromagnetic sine wave frequencies with the changing of the tides, and some people's behavior patterns. Migratory birds and animals follow the electromagnetic grid map of the earth to return to their exact destination year after year for thousands of years. With the original Turbosonic and now the Sonix, the manufacturer refers to Sonic Wave Technology which is this coherent electromagnetic field at an exact desired sine wave frequency. As you are standing or sitting on a true sonic vibration platform your trillions of cells are coming into harmonic resonance with the electromagnetic field at any desired frequency. Truly amazing in its self is that most speakers only go down to 18-20 Hertz which is the lowest point of human hearing, but the engineers of the Turbosonic and now the Sonix have developed their voice coil to go as low as 0 Hertz which is considered Infrasonic sound which we cannot hear but we can certainly feel its power.

In 2009 I was contacted by a medical doctor professor from a Florida University asking questions about the Turbosonic X-7. He had sent me his resume and I was very impressed with all he had accomplished, but his true passion was everything about Nikola Tesla, energy, frequency, and vibration. We talked about all the frequency energy devices he had collected over the years and I shipped him a Turbosonic X-7 to continue his research into why true sonic vibration was having such a profoundly positive effect with people that were using the machine.

We would have long conversations on the human exposure to various frequencies, and in 2009 he sent me 2 clinical studies that had been conducted by NASA. They had gone into the patent of the Turbosonic's voice coil, built the exact same device off of the original Turbosonic patent and ran 2 clinical studies on the development of bone and muscle tissue in young mice. Every page of the report was also stamped Confidential Classified in red. The bottom line was that there was a much greater and faster increase in bone and muscle development with the mice that were using the Turbosonic at 30 Hertz for 10 minutes a day as opposed to not. But the funny thing was in the conclusion of the report the researchers could not determine if it was the 30 Hertz up and down motion or the 30 Hertz Sonic Wave field the mice were exposed to while using the device. I have an idea that the same true sonic vibration device used for that study is now in the International Space Station

In 2007, I received a call from a woman named Lynn who was a researcher in New Jersey. She suffered from a genetic mitochondrial disease and needed to stimulate her spinal muscles every day with a 10 Hertz frequency to keep from going into organ failure. She had been working with other researchers from Harvard, UCLA, and the University of Calgary to try to figure out her genetic condition. We spent about three hours on the phone as she drilled me with questions about the Turbosonic. Can it be set at exactly 10 Hertz? Yes. Is the amplitude completely adjustable? Yes. Is the base a coherent electromagnet field? Yes. Is it truly sound actuated and sine wave driven? Yes. When I finally got off the phone with her, I began getting calls from her researcher friends at Harvard, UCLA, and U of C all wanting to know more about the Turbosonic machine. About a month later, I found a Demo Location in New Jersey, flew out and met with Lynn at the location. She also brought several Doctors with her, including the director of health for the state of New Jersey. When she saw the Turbosonic she set it at 10 Hertz with a very low amplitude of about 20% and laid down on the plate to expose her spinal column to the coherent 10 Hertz electromagnetic field. After being on the machine for about 30 minutes she got up and told us the spinal erector muscles in our backs when stimulated at 10 Hertz don't utilize ATP but produce ATP for the rest of the body. ATP, Adenosine Triphosphate is the energy source for the body. We soon got a Turbosonic delivered to Lynn and she told me later that by exposing her spinal column to the coherent 10 Hertz electromagnetic field she could keep her energy and ATP going for about 10 – 14 days. She also told me for this reason the Turbosonic was a truly life-giving machine as is now the Sonix.

There have been, and are other vibration plates on the market that claim to be sonic, and they may utilize a linear motor connected to mechanical actuating rods for the plate, but they are not a true sonic machine until they can play music through the base.

In the month of December, we did a little inventory reduction sale with several of our key sales people and got our inventory down to 3 Sonix VM15's left in the warehouse but we do have an incoming container that is due to arrive January 22nd. Between now and then we are offering a 10% discount and free shipping for pre-sales on the incoming container.

This email goes out to over 5,000 opt-in subscribers and I look at that as over 5000 potential sales people. Most of you have a Turbosonic or Sonix machine and can share first hand just how amazing true sonic vibration exercise is to your friends, neighbors, social media groups, etc.
