Financial Education Tools You Can Use

While it's great to teach these life skills to Mississippians while they are young, it's never too late to learn about money management. And, since parents are a child's best role models, investing in financial education for adults can end up paying twice the dividends.

TEAM partners with a nationally-recognized company, EverFi, for our learning modules. I have put two of them on my website and encouraged Mississippi employers to share them with their employees free of charge. In fact, they are available to anyone interested in boosting your financial awareness. You can check them out by clicking here and here.
