The Counselors of Real Estate's CRE® Consulting Corps has been engaged by the Spokane Association of REALTORS® to address housing supply issues in Spokane, Washington, as the city's lack of housing production has contributed to escalating home prices and low vacancy rates. The unmet demand is particularly acute for moderate and lower-priced homes. Housing demand is expected to increase as the National Association of Home Builders identifies Spokane among the top 20 markets for home price growth, and NAR has named Spokane among the top 10 post-Covid real estate markets.

The CRE® Consulting Corps is developing an unbiased, objective review of relevant demographic and housing data, examining barriers to development, sharing best practices, and presenting implementable solutions to increase housing options that will meet the full range of the city's housing needs.

Whether your group is a client of the Consulting Corps, refers a property owner in your community looking for "highest and best use" solutions, or you wish to invite a Consulting Corps volunteer to speak at an association or board event, please contact Samantha DeKoven, The Counselors' Director of Public Service Initiatives, at sdekoven@cre.org or 312-329-8431 for more information on any of these opportunities.

Thank you.
