Litany of Remembrance

In the summer sun and fields of brightness
We will remember

In the autumn haze and blazes of color
We will remember

In the winter chill and blankets of whiteness
We will remember

And in the warmth of spring and bursts of new life
We will remember

When we are weary and in need of strength, when we have joys, we yearn to share
We will remember

With everything that is permanent and with all that is passing,
With everything that is majestic, and with all that is common,
With everything that carries us in concern, and with all that lifts us in joy,

We will remember again and again and again

As long as we have life
We will remember

It is the inevitable order of things that John's life has now ended. Where we have choice, we also commit ourselves to the knowledge that whatever else may die, his good effect on us finds immortality in our lives. His influence for good shall join with all others as their remains have joined with the earth, and the universe as a whole, to last as long as time itself.

Chalice Extinguishing Rev. Arlin Roy
