2019 Personal income tax organizer

Your Personal tax organizer includes a personal income tax checklist and tracking schedules. It is designed to make it easier to compile information for your tax preparer. And you'll be sure to have everything you need to take advantage of available tax deductions and credits.

Personal income tax checklist

Simply check off which income items, tax deductions and credits apply to you, and then take note of the relevant tax slips or forms. For each slip or form, you'll find out whether you need to attach it to your return, complete it or simply keep it for your records. If you are filing electronically, you are required to keep all slips and forms on file. This checklist covers federal income tax only. Keep in mind that deductions and credits will be greater after you factor in the corresponding provincial tax deductions and credits.

Other things to consider

Does it apply to you?	What you need to do	What you should know
<input type="checkbox"/> Yes <input type="checkbox"/> No	Record any income for the year for which no tax slip is issued.	Your tax preparer will advise you on whether the income is taxable or not.
<input type="checkbox"/> Yes <input type="checkbox"/> No	Keep copies of your tax returns and all slips and forms.	Canada Revenue Agency advises that you keep all supporting documents for six years.
<input type="checkbox"/> Yes <input type="checkbox"/> No	Review in detail as soon as possible any difference between your return and the government's assessment.	Assess whether the government's change makes sense to you. If not, contact your tax preparer or Canada Revenue Agency.
<input type="checkbox"/> Yes <input type="checkbox"/> No	Maintain a running list of the cost base of your non-registered investment holdings.	This is critical to ensure that you are not double-taxed. Please see tracking schedule, mutual fund purchases and redemptions.
<input type="checkbox"/> Yes <input type="checkbox"/> No	Maintain a list of capital losses available for carry-forward.	Capital losses can be carried forward to offset capital gains in a future year.
<input type="checkbox"/> Yes <input type="checkbox"/> No	Keep on file your $100,000 capital gains exemption, filed in 1994 (T664S).	When you sell the asset, you won't pay taxes on any capital gain for which you are exempt.
<input type="checkbox"/> Yes <input type="checkbox"/> No	Tax information for spouse and children.	A tax preparer needs to refer to these to ensure the proper calculations/allocations of certain deductions, as well as to propose future tax planning strategies.
<input type="checkbox"/> Yes <input type="checkbox"/> No	Record interest you have received for any investment loans you have made to your spouse.	Interest payments are required in order to avoid attribution with this income-splitting strategy. You should also have a written loan agreement.
<input type="checkbox"/> Yes <input type="checkbox"/> No	Arrange for disability tax credit certificate if someone in your family has a severe and prolonged mental or physical impairment.	A certificate is required to claim the disability credit. Disability status must be confirmed by a medical doctor, optometrist, audiologist, nurse practitioner occupational therapist, psychologist, speech-language pathologist or physiotherapist.
<input type="checkbox"/> Yes <input type="checkbox"/> No	Principal residence exemption. Individuals who sell their principal residence on or after January 1, 2016 will be required to report the sale.	Report the sale on Schedule 3 and Form T2091 of your federal return.

Tracking schedules

Capital gains and losses

The purchase price includes any commissions or closing costs paid. Sales proceeds are calculated net of commissions or other selling costs. When disposing of only part of a holding, use the average adjusted cost base per unit to calculate any capital gain or loss.

Mutual fund purchases and redemptions

Keeping track of the cost base of your non-registered mutual fund holdings prevents you from overpaying taxes when you ultimately sell your units. In particular, monthly purchases, automatic reinvestments and redemptions triggered to pay fees affect the number of units held and the cost base.
