

STEWART RICHEY

Employee Spotlight: Brandon Crothers

Brandon Crothers has been a pivotal part of the company for nearly 9 years. His dedication to Stewart Richey has significantly contributed to our growth, inspired his colleagues, and ensured the highest standards of quality and professionalism in our endeavors.

Brandon was born in Bowling Green, Ky. He attended Warren Central High School and ultimately graduated from Bowling Green High School in 2005. Afterward, he moved to New Orleans, where he obtained a DBA in Construction. He continued working in this field for two years before relocating to Texas to pursue a career in real estate appraisals. Brandon explained that entering the real estate business opened many doors for him in his construction career as well.

After spending four years in Texas, Brandon returned to Bowling Green for the birth of his first daughter. As he began his job search, he was determined to continue working in the construction industry. A temporary service helped him secure a position at Stewart Richey. He recalls that his first project as a laborer was at Akebono in Elizabethtown, Ky. Upon being promoted to a lead position, he noted that his first job in this role was at Dominion in Bowling Green, Ky.

Brandon values the consistency of his work and the steady workload throughout the year. He appreciates the collaborative teamwork environment and the company's strong commitment to safety. Additionally, he values the benefits provided, including the Employee Stock Ownership Plan (ESOP) and healthcare. Most importantly, Brandon cherishes the opportunity to contribute to the growth of the Bowling Green community, opening doors to new opportunities. He finds his workload manageable and not overly stressful. Overall, Brandon enjoys the company's culture and holds great appreciation for both the company and its upper management.

Brandon expresses immense gratitude for the opportunity to work alongside some of "the greatest men at Stewart Richey" including William Hass, Brandon Vickous, Taylor Shoemake, Bryan Carrico, Dustin Moore, Clay Nash, Eddie Deal, Phillip Pitt, Tyler Walker, Tim VanMeter, Daniel Basil, & Roddy Grimes. He will always cherish the knowledge and insights these men have instilled in him.

Metal Building Systems General Manager, Bryan Carrico, has enjoyed witnessing Brandon's growth over the years. Stating- "Brandon has the trifecta with his knowledge, ability, and passion. He raises the bar for those who work around him. Watching Brandon's growth over the past 5 years has been a privilege. He has pushed through the difficult times never wavering from his morals and or work ethic and is a great example for those who work under his leadership."

2137 Glen Lily Road
Bowling Green, KY 42101

270.842.5184

stewartrichey.com
info@stewartrichey.com

Aside from his strong work ethic and dedication, Stewart Richey highlights Brandon as an exemplary employee due to his loyalty. In 2018, Brandon and another Lead were both considered for a Foreman position. At that time, Brandon was less experienced and did not secure the role. Despite this setback, Stewart Richey is proud to employ someone who was not deterred by this decision. Instead, it motivated Brandon to work harder so that when the opportunity arose again, he would be prepared. He indeed achieved this goal. As of March 2024, we are proud to recognize Brandon as the 8th Metal Building Systems Foreman.