Math: -Assessments on factorization came home this past week; students are doing well understanding factor trees and working with prime factorization. We have also worked with identifying multiples. In the upcoming week we will be applying these skills in our work with word problems; as well as working with the distributive property (getting us ready to work with all properties and applying PEMDAS). We will also be making the connection between multiplication and division as we head towards long division in the near future! We will have a vocabulary quiz on Wednesday; and a chapter test on Friday.

Religion: -"The Church Celebrates the Seven Sacraments" and "New Life in Christ" will be our focus in the upcoming week as we learn more about Jesus in all the sacraments. The students have received their copy of "There's a Saint for That!"; a project about patron saints. During the month we will also learn about some specific patron saints. Their project will culminate in a Saint Fair where they will setup their choice piece of the project, and they will visit at least 7 of their classmates to view their presentation and take notes on 3 saints, different from their own, and write a short compare and contrast essay. The final products for their project are due October 30.
