

The Adventures of a Global Health Alum in the Field

CRISTIN MARONA, SPH '10

Wednesday, May 30th, 2018

1:45-2:45 CT 305, Fendall Room

Join us in CT 305 to hear from Tanzania Country Director of Palladium and BUSPH alum, Cristin Marona.

Don't miss the opportunity to hear her discuss her truly remarkable early career following graduation from BUSPH and what it's like to be a global health professional in Dar es Salaam, Tanzania.

She will share firsthand knowledge of:

- Real-time career tips for those interested in a global health career
- Her views on the most important skills to secure while at BUSPH
- What it's like to be an expat
- The lifestyle of a global health professional
- Fascinating behind-the-scenes stories from the field

For those determined to work in global health, Cristin's advice and insights will prove invaluable.

As a Country Director, Cristin:

- Manages a global portfolio covering areas of innovation, behavior change communication (BCC), business development, policy, data driven solutions and advocacy and capacity building on health, economic, and education focused programs.
- Leads and manages the country portfolio for Tanzania. She also provides technical expertise in gender and social inclusion to other global Palladium led programs.
- Contributes to strategic input on BCC interventions leading to health outcomes and goals in technical areas, including maternal and child health, gender based violence, orphans and vulnerable children, and poverty reduction.
- Advocates in key areas to expand capacity and country ownership of health and education programs. Assists in forging strong partnerships with local community programs and local government initiatives that foster the practice of positive behavior among individuals and communities by improving their knowledge, attitudes, skills, and norms about key practices that promote improved strategies, use of appropriate tools, and improved behavior related to sustainable development and growth.

Cristin also serves as an Adjunct Professor with Professor Wolffy in GH744 Program Design for Global Health.

Take this amazing opportunity to learn the inside of a fast track global public career.
