

The Strongest Weapon In Motorcyclists' Rights Advocacy

Is Riders Working Together

Your greatest resource is sitting in the next state or right next to you.

Some of the best ideas in motorcyclists' rights advocacy never make headlines.

- They come from conversations.
- A strategy shared over coffee.
- A lesson learned from a legislative fight.
- A solution discovered by another state motorcyclist rights organization.
- A relationship formed between advocates who realize they are facing the same challenge.

Meeting of the Minds brings those conversations together.

The rider sitting next to you may have already fought the battle you're about to face.

The state across the country may already have the answer your organization needs.

The challenge affecting your members today may become a national issue tomorrow.

That is why advocates travel from every corner of the country to attend.

Not just to learn.

To connect.

Because the strongest weapon in motorcyclists' rights advocacy has always been riders working together.
