

Knowledge Is A Weapon

Good intentions don't win legislative battles.

Information does.

The riders who are most effective in protecting motorcycling freedoms are not necessarily the loudest voices in the room. They are the riders who understand the issues, know the facts, and can confidently communicate them to lawmakers, regulators, and decision-makers.

When motorcycle advocates walk into a congressional office, they need more than passion.

They need knowledge.

- They need to understand the latest threats to motorcycling.

- They need to know how federal agencies operate.
- They need to recognize emerging issues before they become major problems.
- And they need to know how to turn concern into action.

That is why Meeting of the Minds exists.

For four days, riders from across America gather to hear from experts, discuss current issues, exchange successful strategies, and prepare for the challenges ahead.

The goal isn't simply to attend another conference.

The goal is to leave Milwaukee better equipped to defend motorcycling than when you arrived.

The fights ahead will be won by informed advocates.

Will you be one of them?
