

Nadine Pratt is Professor for International Management and Sustainability at FOM University, Essen, Germany since 2019 where her research areas are: Sustainability, Sustainable Business Models, Polarity Management and Positive Deviance.

She currently teaches Business Ethics, Applied Consulting, Human Resource Management (Focus Leadership), and Sustainable Growth.

She has a PhD in Sustainability Topic from University of Cologne. She has worked for the CSCP – environmental institute founded by Wuppertal Institute and UNEP, the UN Environment Program as Head of Sustainable Business and Entrepreneurship. From 2014 to 2019 she lived and worked in UK: consulting and as a facilitator (sustainability, diversity management, liberating structures).

She shares with us:

I work in the sustainability field and would like to engage in the sustainability mindset. I am especially interested in the linkages to polarity management and systems thinking, since this is my background. Also, I would be happy to engage in the sustainability mindset with my students.
