

Miguel Córdova PhD (c) is an Assistant Professor and Internationalization Leader of the School of Management and Department of Management Sciences at Pontificia Universidad Católica del Perú. PhD(c) Miguel Córdova has +8 years teaching and +18 years of managerial experience. He holds an MBA from Centrum Business School (Peru). His research is about Power and Influence in organizations, Corporate Networks, Supply Chain Management, and Entrepreneurship.

He was visiting professor at INSEEC Business School in Paris, Universidad del Desarrollo in Santiago de Chile, and ESADE University in Barcelona. Professor Cordova is Deputy Editor of 360 Management Sciences Journal (Peru) and member of the Editorial Committee of CEA Journal (Colombia). He was speaker at several international conferences. He got four research grants, a scholarship for International Teachers Program of the European Foundation for Management Development (EFMD) and one teaching award. Member of AIB Latin American Chapter, and Resources Chair of the Teaching & Education SIG of the Academy of International Business.

He says "I would love to be part of PRME WG on Sustainability Mindset because I would have the opportunity to contribute directly to a global educational effort to understand, mobilize and execute initiatives toward good sustainability practices, which is extremely important if we aim to generate a positive and transcendent impact from teaching."

I think this is important for my institution in order to align progressively its focus and goals to a sustainability mindset. It is important for the Peruvian academic community to understand and live the values and principles of sustainability, and my institution could be one of the leaders of this."

cordova.miguel@pucp.edu.pe