Improving Your Roadtest Procedure for Fuel Trim Diagnostics

In-Person Training
by Jim Wilson

Are you making the best use of your road tests for diagnostics? Join us to discover a procedure that has been proven to work on no-code and code diagnostics to determine the PCM fuel control for driveability issues. This proven four-step procedure, when added to the roadtest, will greatly help as your first step in the diagnostic process for engine performance.

You are already doing roadtests, so why not make the best use of your time?
