Tiferet, A Beautiful Balance

Ora Weinbach, Community Educator

Many commentators mark these seven weeks between Pesach and Shavuot as the time during which Bnei Yisrael underwent spiritual elevation. They transitioned from avdei Paroah to avdei HaShem, slaves of Pharaoh to servants of God, spiritually ready to receive the Torah. This time of year, thus, holds tremendous spiritual power, even for the Jewish people today. One special way we might focus on self-improvement during this time is suggested by Kabbalah. Each week, we are encouraged to focus on one of the Divine Sephirot, emanations or characteristics of God. We are invited to reflect on the meaning of that Divine quality and how we might better embody that trait in our own lives.

This Shabbat is the third week of Sefirat HaOmer and the kabbalistic quality we consider is Tiferet. It is difficult to translate the word Tiferet. It might mean glory or beauty in English, but its significance in Jewish spirituality far surpasses its translation. Most immediately, Tiferet connects the two sephirot of Chesed (Kindness/Mercy) and Din (Justice). These two qualities are extremely challenging to connect to one another; balancing Chesed and Din is extremely difficult. It can be tough to know when to be generous and patient as opposed to when we should be fair and firm, both with ourselves and with others. Tiferet is all about striking that balance.

As seen from its placement in the sephirotic map, Tiferet is right in the middle, interconnected with all of the other Sephirot. Not only is Tiferet the perfect compromise between Chesed and Din; it really is the ultimate mediator between all values and qualities. It represents moderation in all things.

Ultimately, Tiferet means balance. It is therefore quite interesting that it is most often translated into English as glory or beauty. In Judaism, we value moderation so much that it appeals to our aesthetic sense. True beauty is not in physical appearances or unique extremes. Rather, it is in balance and equanimity. No matter how important a single quality or ideal may be, it should never be applied indiscriminately. We are challenged to choose consciously among our many competing values. Only when we do so can we truly act with the glory of Tiferet. This Shabbat, the third of the omer, we are invited to reflect on Tiferet, and are encouraged to find the beauty in balance.

ISRAEL UPDATE

April 16th

The U.S. Intelligence Community Releases 2021 Annual Threat Assessment, Includes Full Section on Iran

On April 13, the U.S. Intelligence Community released its 2021 Annual Threat Assessment, outlining "the most direct, serious threats to the United States during the next year." The report highlights the comprehensive threat posed by Iran—ranging from its regional aggression and support for terrorism, to its ballistic missiles, cyberattacks and potential nuclear breakout. America needs a comprehensive policy—closely coordinated with our regional allies—to permanently prevent Iran from acquiring a nuclear weapon and address the regime's ballistic missile program, terrorism, and regional aggression. U.S. sanctions increase our diplomatic leverage and hold Iran accountable for its actions. Trading an economic lifeline for temporary nuclear restrictions is a good deal for Iran's cash-strapped regime but will deprive us of the leverage we need for a "longer and stronger" deal. Our synagogue partners with AIPAC, America's pro-Israel lobby, in educating our community on issues affecting the U.S.-Israel relationship. We encourage you to learn more by contacting AIPAC at (202) 639-5200 or by visiting www.aipac.org.
