

As part of its ongoing process of self-reflection, and in accordance with U. S. Department of Education regulations and NWCCU Bylaws, NWCCU began its cycle of review for its Eligibility Requirements, Policies, and the Standards of Accreditation on September 1st.

President Ramaswamy and NWCCU Staff have traveled to Alaska, Montana, Idaho, Nevada, Oregon, Utah, and Washington to gather feedback in Town Hall conversations in addition to holding two Online Town Halls to solicit feedback from members and the public.

The process of revision includes the opportunity for feedback from key constituents, including institutional leadership, faculty, staff, and students, as well as the public. This self-reflective exercise provides all constituents the opportunity to assess the processes around NWCCU's accreditation activities (including the cycle of evaluation and the methods of evaluation). Conversations have focused around the themes of: Student Achievement and Success, Governance, Efficiency and Effectiveness, Risk-Based Accreditation and Alternative Pathways, and Transparency.

The feedback from constituents was used by the Commission to craft revised Standards, Policies, and Eligibility Requirements in January and a period of review and public comment is underway through March 31, 2019. A second review period and call for comment will be made available in July before adoption of the revised Standards, Policies, and Eligibility Requirements in January 2020.

To view the draft 2020 Revised Standards of Accreditation and Eligibility Requirements, review a whitepaper discussing findings to date and frequently asked questions, and to participate in public comment on the current version, please visit the Standards Revision webpage at <http://www.nwccu.org/accreditation/standards-review/>.
