Following 2-Year Hiatus, Formation of Tim Kubash Group Announced

Salmon Arm, British Columbia, Canada – Tim Kubash is excited to announce the formation of the Tim Kubash Group which reflects what the company is now offering across western Canada following Tim's 2-year hiatus from the business. Included under the new group's umbrella are: Western Rootzone, which provides custom drill and fill services as well as sales and distribution partnerships with Core Nutrients, Maredo and Turf Prophit.

As part of the formation of the new group, Aaron Cronk joins the team as Lead Field Technician. Aaron is an Olds College graduate and had the privilege of working with several great superintendents during his 13-year career in the golf industry.

*"I must start off by thanking the golf and turf community for the generous donations and encouraging comments I have received over the past year and a half. I am truly overwhelmed by the support I have received which allowed me to concentrate on my recovery and adaptation to my new world. After tipping over a tractor on my acreage and shattering the C5 & C6 vertebrae I am paralyzed from the chest down, with virtually no leg function. Perhaps more function will develop over time, who knows! To those that organized the Go Fund Me campaign on my behalf, and all of you who donated, I will be forever grateful. It has made the adjustment to a life without legs a little less painful. I am excited to announce the formation of this new group and the addition of Aaron to the team. We are going to work hard to serve the turfgrass community with a pool of best-in-class solutions." – Tim Kubash, President, Tim Kubash Group
