

Manitoba Report

We are in the middle of a very typical Manitoba winter here with lots of snow and very cold temperatures. After a few mild, dry winters and drought conditions in the summer it is nice to see some snowfall to recharge the river and lake systems that so many courses rely on for water. There were some initial ice concerns at a few courses in the Winnipeg area but hopefully those don't cause too much of an issue and the abundant snowfall continues to provide insulation from the very cold temperatures.

Here in Manitoba, we have had to forgo our Manitoba Golf and Turf Conference once again due to Covid-19 restrictions. We are hopeful that we can hold our summer monthly meetings if all goes well and are currently planning our next in person conference.

While it was certainly disappointing not to be able to head to Toronto in person CGSA is lining up another great virtual conference. Kudos to the staff for the last-minute pivot and just like last year I am sure there will be lots of great educational opportunities and virtual networking to be had. Be sure to mark the dates on your calendar and join us online. Congratulations as well to all the award winners announced over the past couple of months!
