

June 3rd, 2021 - Quebec Report

The beginning of this season began earlier than in previous years for the majority of golf courses in the Montréal area. Similar to last year, the number of rounds of golf played, has been steadily increasing. Therefore, waiting lists are becoming a very popular occurrence in the private sector of golf.

The month of May has been extremely dry, we've received less than 10 times the normal amount of precipitation. I hope that we'll see more rainfall during the month of June. Kanawaki Golf Club will be hosting the first QGCA tournament this year on July 12th, with Mike Lecavalier at the helm.

Finally, we are starting to see the light at the end of the tunnel regarding the Covid-19 situation, with an average of 300 daily cases over the course of the past 10 days. The Legault administration has kept their word and has vaccinated 70% of our population with the first dose. The terraces have now been given the green light, along with restaurants opening to the public next week. I hope that everyone will be able to get out, have a good time, and enjoy some good old-fashioned camaraderie.

In conclusion, remaining positive and optimistic has proven difficult even for me. I am glad that this reality is coming to an end. I am aware that the Covid-19 global pandemic has been tough for all and created at times what we thought was insurmountable obstacles. However, this has given a spectacular resurgence to the fantastic sport/game of golf, we all so deeply love and cherish.
