

In the Spotlight...

Our Mission – Warrior Trading offers on-demand educational courses, tools, and community support to new and experienced day traders. Interest in day trading has grown in the digital age, and especially over the last two years. Rather than view the stock markets like a casino, traders should treat their career in day trading like a business — one that takes time to build and grow. Warrior Trading tries to simplify the journey by providing a comprehensive platform of resources and emphasizing risk management to its students.

Our Background – Ross Cameron founded Warrior Trading in 2014 to help other traders avoid some of the costly mistakes that he made when first starting out. He observed that there was a large gap in the market needing to be filled with a comprehensive course paired with complementary tools and strategy development, which Warrior Trading now provides for aspiring traders. Ross’s YouTube video “Day Trading for Beginners” has been viewed almost 10 million times since its debut in 2015. Originally started as just a basic set of classes and small online community, Warrior now offers hundreds of hours of trading education in a professional learning management system to students across the world. Additionally, students can access a trading simulator to practice before ever even opening a brokerage account, along with stock scanners to help identify trading opportunities. Warrior’s customer support team, based here locally, answers hundreds of student questions each day for students needing an extra hand.

Our Blueprint for Success – Success in providing day trading education has given Warrior Trading the ability to give back to the community and financially support causes and organizations doing meaningful work in Western Massachusetts. For example, during the early days of the pandemic, Warrior Trading sponsored the Food for Fairview program, which provided financial support to struggling restaurants while providing high quality meals to the hard-working staff at Fairview Hospital. Ross, his family, and the team at Warrior Trading all believe that part of the joy of success is having the ability to financially support causes and organizations doing outstanding work.
