Jeff Wallace

'Resilient'. That is the word to define Jeff Wallace. Jeff, MCJ, will provide insight into his journey as a teen spending most days incarcerated as a juvenile to being later incarcerated for 6 years as an adult – 4 of those years in solitary confinement. He will shed light on his adverse experiences that eventually became life lessons for him to inspire and teach others in the community who are in the same predicament. Jeff will share 4 strategies that allowed him to not only exhibit resiliency, but maintain and thrive with resiliency to this very day.

Lt. Kevin Smull

Lt. Kevin Smull, has 26 years of experience in law enforcement in Davenport with expertise in narcotics trafficking and enforcement and drug interdiction, among other areas. He will discuss information and trends in Scott County as it relates to prescription drugs, heroin Carfentanil, fentanyl, Topics will include why individuals use opiates, common myths and misperceptions, overdose statistics in our community, paraphernalia associated with opiate use, and counterfeit prescription drug pills that contain fentanyl.

Brooke Brown

'Opioid Crisis in America: The Cost of Abuse'. Brooke Brown, Robert Young Center / CADS Manager of Substance Disorder Treatment & Prevention, will share about the impact of opioid misuse, signs and symptoms, the impact COVID-19 has had on the opioid crisis, preventative measures you can take, and how to access services. As the opioid crisis continues to impact families and communities all across the nation, it is important now more than ever to learn about different ways you can help combat the problem.
