ISU Serving Agriculture: Yesterday, Today and Tomorrow

John Lawrence is the Iowa State University Vice President for Extension and Outreach. Since 1991, he has served as a professor of Economics. Lawrence began his career as an Extension Livestock Economist, but has held many roles including: Director of the Iowa Beef Center; Associate Dean in the College of Agriculture and Life Sciences; and Director of Agriculture and Natural Resources Extension and Outreach. He was raised on a crop and livestock farm and truly believes in building a strong Iowa.

DR. WENDONG ZHANG
ISU Assistant Economics Professor

7 Things You Should Know About China to Understand the Trade War

Wendong Zhang is the leading researcher of the Iowa Land Value Survey, the Iowa Farmland Ownership and Tenure Survey, as well as the ISU Soil Management and Land Valuation Conference. Zhang will discuss the recent developments in the US-China trade war. In particular, he will highlight seven critical economic, political and cultural aspects about China to help attendees better understand the actions and attitudes of the Chinese government and people.
