

Offer to Parishes - Vocation Office

Dear Friends,

As you navigate this odd time and plan for your religious education sessions, we in the Vocation Office wanted to extend our help. We believe that personal invitation and walking with young people is necessary for fostering vocations in our Diocese. Part of this is growing in relationship with the students in our local parishes and letting them get to know us and vice versa.

We know that planning sessions require a lot of moving parts which may include having someone give a talk or teaching on a particular subject. Our Office would love to contribute by being available to give talks, teachings, and panel discussions. These talks can certainly be about vocations (that does appear to be in our wheelhouse) but we would also love to branch off into other topics.

The Vocation Office is also excited to announce the launch of a brand new website dedicated to fostering vocations, as well as trying to make information, contact, and resources accessible and easy to find. The new site can be found at: gbvocations.org. Please check it out and utilize the many great features that we have included.

One upcoming event that we would love for you all to push with your young men is the annual Andrew Dinner. It is a chance for young men who are open to discerning the priesthood to come together, pray, eat, and learn. This year, it will take place on Wednesday, September 23rd on the Diocesan Campus from 5:30 PM - 8:00 PM. Please go to the new Vocations website for more info and registration.

To reach out to us, feel free to send any of us an email, call, or fill out our speaking request form on the website, under the "contact us" tab. We look forward to serving you all.

In Christ,
