

Flash Fiction Prompt

Use this story as your prompt, choose a genre in which you do not usually write such as western, horror, supernatural, romance, mystery, thriller, or adventure] and re-write the following with full permission to change, add and rearrange whatever suits your imagination. However, keep it as short yet as possible and yet remember the rules of a good story, catch the reader's attention [strong beginning], explain the characters and relationships [middle] and create closure [end].

The townhouse door opened. A woman and her beloved dog stepped outside. She scanned the street then locked the door. The dog eager to be off, strained at the leash. A walk to the end of the street and a left turn brought them to the dog park. As soon as they were through the entrance gate, she unleashed her dog and off he ran to play with his doggy friends. She had brought a ball to throw for him and later they would walk along one of the wooded trails.