

Join the Great Lakes Collaborative UCC for the 2nd Annual Retreat!

August 18-20
Cedar Valley Camp and Retreat Center, West Bend, WI

This retreat will have informational workshops for:

- Beginners, looking for ideas and actions for a newly formed environmental justice team.
- Activators, wanting to step beyond the church and home projects and into relationships with their communities and other environmental justice organizations.
- Agitators, ready to move into action to support individuals, congregations, and communities to advocate for diversification from fossil fuel and companies that continue to strip the land and pollute our water.

The Land Speaks with Roy and Jean Reddemann

Roy Reddemann (Northern Cheyenne) and his wife, Jean (Potawatomi and Ojibwe) have maintained and operated a ceremony ground on a portion of the Cedar Valley property for years. They have a teepee (Roy's tradition) and a sweat lodge that is used for Inipi, or healing ceremonies. Roy and Jean will discuss their stories with the land and the work they provide to connect people back to the land through spiritual activities.

Plastics and Our Health: An Urgent Call for Change with Jane Dow

Jane Dow is an environmental activist, who co-founded Mankato Fair Trade and Mankato Zero Waste. She also started an organics recycling program in Mankato and the surrounding area. Recently, Jane started a local chapter of the Beyond Plastics nationwide project to end plastic pollution. She is also a member of the Coalition to Reduce Plastic.

Register here with the link:
[Great Lakes Collaborative-UCC
Retreat Registration](#)

For questions contact Lisa Hart
by emailing: lhart@wcucc.org

Scan the QR Code
to register!

