

Walter Contreras is the CEO of Motiva, a cybersecurity-first IT firm supporting mortgage and financial services organizations.

After years of working with regulated firms, Walter saw a consistent issue: companies relying on IT providers who kept systems running but left them exposed during audits, cyber incidents, and compliance reviews. He founded Motiva to close that gap—building an approach centered on cybersecurity, regulatory alignment, and operational reliability.

Today, he works closely with organizations to strengthen their security posture, navigate frameworks like NYDFS, and ensure they're prepared for the moments that matter most.
