by Alize Mejia

The communication department is known for the presence of its students in many impressive establishments. As the department continues to advance in producing better classes, concentrations, and alumni, current students' success proceeds along with it.

The hard work, motivation, and drive that each student portrays shows, and can be seen in the internship opportunities they carve out for themselves.

One student in particular who exudes these particular values is sophomore Thomas Courtney. Courtney is enrolled in the Sports Media Production concentration at the communication department, and has recently received the opportunity to be a part of the MAAC Men's and Women's Golf Championship at the ESPN Wide World of Sports Complex. At his internship, Courtney produces exclusive interview footage of players and coaches. He also gets the opportunity to edit packages of the games, while using professional software and learning different editing techniques.

Courtney says he is very excited to work "alongside ESPN professionals and to gain valuable skills while being a sophomore in college."
