Virginia Wing Supports CAP-USAF Exercises

Cadets and senior members from the Virginia Wing's Danville Composite Squadron (pictured here) turned out Oct. 18 to lend helping hands as needed for CAP-USAF exercises at Danville Regional Airport.

"Lots of hard work by everyone allowed for a safe and successful clinic," said the squadron's commander, Capt. Michael J. Duncan, calling the activity "the highlight of my command tenure" and adding that Air Force Col. Damion Holtzclaw, CAP-USAF vice commander, "was thrilled at the cadet involvement and very appreciative of the support."
