LITANY OF CONFESSON

The Rev. Jennifer Latham, Holy Nativity Episcopal Church

One: O God, you created us and gave us life, but what do we do with this gift? We live and work, but want more and more. Like children bringing their broken toys, we lay here before you our lives in need of restoration.

Many: Our daily defeats and discouragements. Our empty attempts and fruitless successes. Our weariness of anxiety and grief.

One: O God, the one who dwells among us to teach us what love is. Show us the way of love, we bring you our fragmented lives to be made whole.

Many: The darkness that separates our souls from other souls. The loneliness that is hidden behind cheerful words and smiles. The hurts we find too hard to forgive.

One: Spirit of the Living God forgive us as we have mistreated, abused, taken advantage of native/first peoples, and taken over lands not our own and brought illness and hurts upon hurts.

Many: We grieve that we can't reverse what has been done and that there are no easy answers. Forgive us for our greed and lack of love.

One: We haven't learned from the past as we continue with wars to conquer, dominate, and subjugate.

Many: We pray for peace, that we would be peacemakers, and endeavor to speak out against violence.

One: Forgive us that we have not been good stewards of your creation. We have exploited the goodness of the earth for personal gains.

Many: Forgive us for our lack of foresight and passion to change.

One: O Spirit of Comfort and Wisdom, we bring before you the unspoken yearnings of our souls.

Many. The longing for a closer relationship with you. The search for a purpose in our lives. For lessons that turns knowledge into wisdom.

All: Creator have mercy. Redeemer, have mercy. Sustainer have mercy.
