This week ACWA Power Dubai welcomed and hosted 41 Executive MBA students from Hofstra University, America. They came to learn more about sustainability and the future of power in the UAE.

Dr. Andrea Lovato, Executive Director, Business Development, Renewables & Abdullah Alsaeri, Manager in Technology gave presentations on CSP and PV and how these will be part of an important renewables future.

The MBA students broke into groups and answered a challenging question on renewable energy; how it is becoming increasingly cost competitive and what can be done to help the transition to a carbon free future. They then presented their answers to Dr. Lovato and Abdullah Alsaeri.

The whole session was highly beneficial to the students who asked many different and interesting questions.
