

Mount Sinai Researchers Uncover Why Some Leukemia Cells May Resist Treatment

OncLive - January 13, 2025

Eirini Papapetrou, MD, PhD, discusses her research regarding acute myeloid leukemia and its resistance to a common treatment.

Reach: 95,598

Study Identifies How Ovarian Cancer Protects Itself, Paves Way for Improved Immunotherapy Approach

OncLive - January 15, 2025

Brian Brown, PhD, and Alessia Baccarini, PhD, discuss their research regarding a way that ovarian cancer tumors manipulate their environment to resist immunotherapy and how they identified a drug target that could overcome that resistance.

Reach: 95,598

American Society of Hematology Announces 2025 Scholar Award Recipients

American Society of Hematology - January 17, 2025

Franco Izzo, PhD, is featured as one of the 35 recipients of American Society of Hematology's Scholar Awards for 2025.

Reach: 306,979

AI Use in Surgeries for Prostate Cancer May Help Standardize Outcomes

Oncology - CancerNetwork - January 20, 2025

Ketan Badani, MD, discusses artificial intelligence and how it may have the potential to better standardize surgery outcomes in patients undergoing prostatectomies and train doctors to more effectively perform them.

Reach: 79,943

Artificial Intelligence May Expedite Prognoses in Cancer Care

Oncology - CancerNetwork - January 22, 2025

Ketan Badani, MD, discusses how he expects artificial intelligence to become a standard of care in 5 years.

Reach: 79,943

Kate Middleton and Remission: Oncologists Weigh In

MedPage Today - January 23, 2025

Stephanie Blank, MD, discusses the follow-up care Kate Middleton will have as someone in remission from cancer.

Reach: 761,408

Breast cancer survivor credits second opinion for saving her life and her baby

Pix11 - January 24, 2025

Willana Mack, a patient of Mount Sinai, discusses how a second opinion from Dr. Angela Bianco saved her and her baby.

Reach: 1,675,613

World Cancer Day At The Mount Sinai Hospital In Harlem, New York

Harlem World Magazine - January 27, 2025

The Center of Excellence for Cancer Support Services, The Tisch Cancer Institute, and the Woman to Woman gynecologic cancer support program will host a special health fair on World Cancer Day, Tuesday, February 4, 2025.

Reach: 18,283