

TO: Mount Sinai Hospital Ruttenberg Treatment Center, Dubin Breast Center and Oncology Faculty and Staff

FROM: Alison Snow, PhD, LCSW-R, OSW-C
MSHS Senior Director, Cancer Supportive Services
Adjunct Assistant Professor, Hematology and Medical Oncology and Environmental Medicine and Public Health, ICAHN School of Medicine at Mount Sinai
Co-Director of the Center of Excellence for Cancer Support Services

DATE: February 24, 2026

RE: Oncology Social Work Promotions at Mount Sinai Hospital

We are very pleased to announce the promotions of Kaitlin Giordano, LCSW; Jessica Kreitman, LCSW, OSW-C; and Yu Mee Song, LCSW, OSW-C within Oncology Social Work at Mount Sinai Hospital.

Kaitlin Giordano, LCSW has been promoted to Associate Director of Oncology Social Work. In this expanded role, Kaitlin will continue to provide leadership and oversight for the Mount Sinai Hospital oncology social work team, with primary responsibility for the solid tumor services. Since joining Mount Sinai Hospital in 2011, Kaitlin has played a key role in advancing and strengthening oncology social work programs. She has extensive clinical experience in inpatient oncology, focusing on adult patients with head and neck cancers, complex ENT surgeries, and solid tumor diagnoses. Kaitlin has also contributed significantly to quality improvement initiatives. She has served on the Tisch Cancer Center's Quality Improvement Committee and is the social work lead on the Inpatient Oncology Quality Committee. She implemented the inpatient Oncology Complex Discharge Committee, co-leading it in a physician/social work dyad. Additionally, she helps oversee financial grant disbursement to support patients in overcoming barriers and increasing access to cancer care. Kaitlin participates in the hospital's Commission on Cancer Committee and reports on TCI's cancer screening and prevention efforts. She is deeply committed to advancing equitable, patient-centered care and addressing the psychosocial, cultural, and systemic factors that affect patients' access to and experience of cancer treatment. Kaitlin earned her MSW from the NYU Silver School of Social Work.

Jessica Kreitman, LCSW, OSW-C has been promoted to Manager of Oncology Social Work and will continue to oversee the oncology social workers at the Dubin Breast Center and the GI social workers at the Ruttenberg Treatment Center, in addition to managing inpatient social workers. Since joining Mount Sinai in 2014, Jessica has built a strong foundation of clinical and programmatic expertise across oncology settings. She has established a strong track record of identifying and implementing best practices, standardizing workflows, and strengthening interdisciplinary collaboration to support high-quality, patient-centered care. She received her MSW from the Silberman School of Social Work at Hunter College and completed the Zelda Foster Certificate Program in Palliative and End-of-Life Care at NYU. In her leadership role, she has also expanded and developed supportive programming across both the GI and breast cancer services, enhancing access to psychosocial, educational, and quality-of-life resources for patients and families throughout the cancer continuum.

Yu Mee Song, LCSW, OSW-C has worked at Mount Sinai Hospital since 2004 and was recently promoted to Manager of Oncology Social Work. In this role, she continues to oversee the Multiple Myeloma oncology social workers while expanding her leadership to include supervision of Hematology social workers across both inpatient and outpatient settings. Since joining the myeloma program in 2010, Yu Mee has been instrumental in developing and implementing comprehensive psychosocial programs that address the emotional needs of patients and caregivers while improving access to specialized myeloma care. She continues to serve on the Tisch Cancer Center's Quality Improvement Committee, playing a key role in advancing social work quality initiatives across the Cancer Center and contributing to enhanced patient-centered care and program excellence. She received her MSW from LSU School of Social Work.

Please join us in congratulating Kaitlin, Jessica, and Yu Mee on their well-deserved promotions. We look forward to their continued leadership and success.