Rabbi's Message by Rabbi Beth H. Klafter

When I was in grade school, we didn't observe "Presidents' Day" as the third Monday in February. The highlight of the month wasn't "Presidents' Week Vacation." Instead, Abraham Lincoln was remembered on his birthday, February 12th. (There is a story in my family that when Lincoln's Birthday was once mentioned at the dinner table, I was about five or six and suggested that we buy him a shirt as a gift!) And we honored our first president on his birthday, the twenty-second day of February.

Among his accomplishments, President George Washington is remembered for the message he shared with Jews in our country. You may know the story about Washington's visit to Touro Synagogue in Newport, Rhode Island. Touro, built in 1763, is the oldest synagogue in North America and it continues to function as a congregation. After a visit to Touro Synagogue in 1790, Washington wrote a letter to the community there. The letter is still read aloud annually in Newport at the congregation. His words, including some that have often been cited, remain meaningful and powerful today. (Following are excerpts from his text.)

The citizens of the United States of America have a right to applaud themselves for having given to mankind examples of an enlarged and liberal policy—a policy worthy of imitation. All possess alike liberty of conscience and immunities of citizenship.

It is now no more that toleration is spoken of as if it were the indulgence of one class of people that another enjoyed the exercise of their inherent natural rights, for, happily, the Government of the United States, which gives to bigotry no sanction, to persecution no assistance, requires only that they who live under its protection should demean themselves as good citizens in giving it on all occasions their effectual support.

Cantorial Notes by Rabbi/Cantor Audrey Halpern

Dear Friends,

The month of February could well be a cold and gloomy time of year. But within those short days filled with threats of snow and for Steve and me, the advent of tax season, we can each take what we do with our time and our lives into our own hands. Now, having faced many challenges of my own, I cannot be so naïve as to say that we make our own fate. We all know that there is a lot that can happen that we simply cannot control. It need not be a life and death situation. It could be boredom or the winter blues or, in my case, missing my long distance family.

This February I am taking my own advice and making time and space for joy – a quick few days in Colorado (we will have one in Ithaca in January), a weekend or two in New York City, and maybe a couple of special dinners for our birthdays and Valentine's Day. When we dot our times with little highlights that we can look forward to, the long winters seem to melt away and spring gets just a little bit closer.

It doesn't all have to be vacation, though; it can be the pleasure of singing, or coming together on Shabbat, or baking a treat or meeting a friend, or reading a great book or learning a new song! We are so blessed to be able to draw pleasure from the everyday moments we may take for granted unless we make the conscious choice to tune in to happiness.

This winter, that is my goal, and I encourage you to try it too. I would love to hear your ideas for how to create more happy moments and make your lives feel the excitement of that little sprinkling of joy throughout the winter and even beyond!

Remember, the Torah teaches us to choose life!

Wishing you many wonderful moments ahead.

B'shalom,

Rabbi/Cantor Audrey Halpern

May the children of the stock of Abraham who dwell in this land continue to merit and enjoy the good will of the other inhabitants—while everyone shall sit in safety under his own vine and fig tree and there shall be none to make him afraid. May the father of all mercies scatter light, and not darkness, upon our paths, and make us all in our several vocations useful here, and in His own due time and way everlastingly happy. ~ G. Washington

As we observe "Presidents' Day" on February 18th, let us take the time to remember those who founded our nation and the values they cherished.

Shalom,

Rabbi Beth H. Klafter

By the way, do you know where to find the Touro Synagogue letter from George Washington at TBD?

Religious School News

While the Jewish people are fortunate to have the opportunity to create a second set of New Year's resolutions each year (January – secular and September – Jewish), we still find ourselves giving up on these resolutions fairly quickly. In an attempt to counter this problem, this year, I have decided to make a resolution that renews itself each month. My resolution, then, is that on the first of each month, I will review the resolutions I made in January and September, think about my progress (if any) and amend them where necessary (hopefully). My resolutions often have to do with parenting my two daughters who are now teenagers (Yikes!).

While reading a book on spiritual parenting during the break, I came across a different way of understanding “created in God's image” (b'tzelem Elohim bara). Previously, I had thought of it as doing what is right, walking with God, etc., which is all fine. But Rabbi Paul Kipnes and Michelle November, the authors of Jewish Spiritual Parenting, spoke about this idea in terms of parenting. It should be our goal as parents to ensure that our children “identify tzelem Elohim in themselves and others, and thus to create a world of kindness and connectedness” (p. 119).

In other words, we should see our children for whom they are and teach them to see the unique and special qualities of other people as well. Thinking of our children as so closely connected to God helps us understand or at least accept our children's differences. When my eldest was 4, I was troubled with the way she played. I know that sounds crazy, but she never just played with Legos or dolls or any one thing, like other kids. She would create a city, (right in our living room!) made of furniture, dolls, blankets, Lego creations, and anything else she could find. Everything was scotch-taped together. Yes, it took her hours or sometimes days to create and then play with, but the clean-up became unbearable for me. I couldn't handle it. I spoke to a wise woman from her nursery school. She said to me that her “different” way of playing demonstrates how creative Lindsey is. Those words have stuck with me for the past 15 years. Once I accepted that her behavior (as strange as it was to me at the time), was just a manifestation of her imagination, peace was brought to our house once again. I stopped trying to get her to play with one thing at a time and learned to involve her more in the cleanup. (Her methods of creativity have changed with each phase of childhood – art, writing, filmmaking. She now is an amateur screenwriter and director.)

Why not take February to be the month of finding the “tzelem Elohim” in each of your children? I am holding a Religious School Parenting Workshop on Sunday, March 10th at 9:15 a.m. Please join me for a bagel and conversation about finding “tzelem Elohim” in your children. Bring stories that will help us all become better parents.

From the President's Desk

When I became president of the congregation a fellow congregant gave me a book of quotes as a gift. This same congregant is seemingly always the first to read my article and send me words of praise which certainly helps me as I start the next month's piece.

The book I was given is called Don't Forget to Sing in the Lifeboats, by Kathryn and Ross Petras. The subtitle of the book is "uncommon wisdom for uncommon times." It is with this subtext in mind that I want to center my article this month. After the horrific shootings in Pittsburgh, we as a temple and in fact, the entire Jewish community, were poised to take action to make sure this didn't happen in our temple. We are now embarking on what I would consider uncommon times and therefore need to take uncommon or action that we have not typically done.

As you read in the letter expertly written by Craig Cooper, we are already doing a lot to protect all of us, but more is needed. We have hired security guards for major events and busy times in our temple. We have looked to improve our alarm system, conduct lock-out/lock-down drills in our school and make other upgrades to our structure that will help to protect each of us as we enter our building. Additionally, we are conducting training for all Board members who serve as hosts and reps each Friday and Saturday, so that these key people know the procedures in order to protect everyone's health and safety.

Just a few weekends ago I met with Craig Cooper and Steve Sarisohn, and we brainstormed about everything we are doing as a temple to protect our congregants, guests and facility. We also looked at what makes our location vulnerable and discussed what we can do to address these vulnerabilities. We did all of this as we wrote a grant sponsored by the NYS Division of Homeland Security and Emergency Services. As you already know, we asked everyone to make a donation to our security campaign because unfortunately security protection does not come cheap. This grant offered us the opportunity to apply for additional funds to help us fortify (their word not mine) our facility.

Unfortunately, we did not receive the grant but will continue to pursue other grant opportunities (they let us know one will be offered in 2019). Many thanks to Craig and Steve for all their hard work and grant-writing skills, to all who donated to our security campaign, and to the countless volunteers who help to make TBD prosper and continue to be an amazing place to call home.

As president, I am always humbled by the tremendous efforts of all who work to ensure our temple's future. These very efforts resonated when I read this quote by Isaac Bashevis Singer from the book I was given. Isaac said, "For those who are willing to make an effort, great miracles and wonderful treasures are in store." I hope the miracle we gain is peace for all, and the treasure we gain is enhanced protection from those who do not share in the miracle we believe in.

Spotlight on Brotherhood

The Brotherhood got off to a rocking start in 2019. On January 20, we watched the AFC Championship Game at the temple. Although as I write this article, I don't know yet which teams we watched, I'm fairly sure one of the teams will have been the New England Patriots, who we always boo gleefully, except, of course, for Steve Swartz, who most probably will cry like a baby when his team loses and he is mocked brutally. (Of course, if my expectations are not realized, I assume I will be able to edit this paragraph before the HaKol goes to print—but I'm pretty sure I'm right, so even if I'm not able to edit, I'm willing to take that chance!)

If the fall is about Football, then March is about...The Brotherhood Shabbat Service, also known as March Madness! If anyone is interested in participating in our service, please contact Steve Swartz (stephenwswartz@gmail.com). The service is on Friday, March 8 and the rehearsal is Sunday, February 10, to be followed by a game of cards (after the rehearsal that is, not at the service). Apparently, there is another March Madness event relating to college basketball and we are going to have our own bracket. If you are interested in participating, please contact (you guessed it) Steve Swartz (stephenwswartz@gmail.com) or Adam Browser (abrowser@yahoo.com). (That Swartz guys seems to be doing a lot for us, so I probably shouldn't have mocked him so brutally because of the playoff game). You can participate in our bracket online, which makes it easy to pick your teams and easier to follow, although we will also be having a bracket selection night at Miller's Ale House.

March is a busy month for us. We also have our Third Annual Blues Night on Saturday, March 2, featuring the Kerry Kearney Band. The band is currently touring nationwide on the strength of their new CD, so we are thrilled that we were able to get them to play again this year. Tickets are available on Acceptiva for $20 or $25 at the door. The last two Blues Nights were rousing successes. A portion of the proceeds goes to a fantastic charity—the Sophia Valsamos Foundation, whose mission is to empower young people to take a stand against bullying, find support around challenges and embrace each other's differences. So we hope to see everyone there.

March is also about Purim, and again the Brotherhood will be running the concession stand. We can use all the help we can get, so if you want to volunteer, please let us know. Details will be going out over email and on Facebook. I would be remiss not to mention Comedy Night, which is on Saturday, March 30. Although it is not a Brotherhood event, a number of Brotherhood members are involved, and we always have a great time.

We have some great events coming up in April as well, including Beer Tasting at the temple, to be followed by a movie (which right now is likely to be Beerfest, coincidentally enough). On a more serious note, we are also planning to host a Yom HaShoah speaker on Sunday, April 28 at 9:00 a.m. at the temple.

As you can see, at the Brotherhood we are having a great time doing all sorts of activities. If you haven't joined us at an event, please just come down for any one that sounds appealing and see how you like it. Most of our events are free and open to everyone. If you are not getting our emails, please email Adam Browser, our corresponding secretary, at abrowser@yahoo.com. Adam's emails are both entertaining and informative, and they've really improved since he decided to proofread them... and of course, join us on Facebook. We look forward to welcoming you at one of our many 2019 events!

3RD ANNUAL BROTHERHOOD BLUES NIGHT

featuring the Kerry Kearney Band

Kerry Kearney plays and works his instrument to limits that amaze even the most seasoned musician or cultured music fan. The sounds Kerry creates from his vintage, stock and custom made guitars are as unique as his songwriting and original melodies.

Kerry was voted "Best Guitarist of 1999" by the LI Voice and "Bluesman of the Year 2004" by the LI Blues Society. He is also the recipient of the prestigious Long Island Sound Award from the LI Music Hall of Fame. In 2013, he and his bandmates were inducted into the New York Blues Hall of Fame. He has toured nationally and internationally with the Allman Brothers Band and Dickey Betts, and has performed with such contemporaries as Sonny Landreth and Robert Randolph. Kerry and his band have shared the stage with the such greats as BB King, Robert Cray, The Blues Brothers and Legendary ZZ Top Guitarist Billy Gibbons.

Spotlight on Sisterhood

Just as animals hibernate in winter, Sisterhood seems to be taking a rest from our event-filled 2018-2019 calendar. But don't worry, there are many activities planned for the spring. I want to thank Glenda Kresh and Debbie Friedman for presenting us with a peek of spring by hosting the Tu B'Shevat Seder which was held in January. Everyone who attended enjoyed each other's company and had a "warm" discussion. Sisterhood also held its monthly board meeting, which was well attended and where we discussed events planned for the spring. Unfortunately, the jewelry-making cultural arts program had to be cancelled because the jewelry choices weren't considered acceptable by the committee.

February is a quiet month (Happy President's Day!) for Sisterhood events. Our only scheduled activity is the board meeting on Thursday, February 7 at 7:30 p.m. in the social hall. If anyone has any ideas for new activities or events, please feel free to e-mail me at jacobsrdd@optonline.net and I will be happy to present your idea to the board. The Cultural Arts Committee is looking into a "surprise" event and, if we find an appropriate "surprise," details will be publicized in the Whole Megillah, Order of Service, e-mails, and other forms of social media.

Events to look forward to in March include Ladies Night Out Bingo on Thursday, March 14 and ("back by popular demand" or in case you couldn't attend last summer), Mah Jongg Education classes on Tuesdays (March 12, 19, and 26). Beginners and experts are welcome!

April highlights include the "Coming to the New Land" bus tour on Sunday, April 14. The trip includes transportation to and from the city, a tour of Castle Clinton, the boat to and from Ellis Island for a private tour and movie, and finally, a tour of the Museum of Jewish Heritage. A kosher lunch is included. This trip is not to be missed, and you get all for the low cost of $85 per person! Sisterhood members must RSVP by February 14. Thereafter, this trip will be open to all temple members. Payments must be received no later than March 14 to guarantee a spot. If you have any questions, contact Toni Spring at (631) 462-1576 or toni.spring@gmail.com.

Finally, it's not too late to join the committee for the BIG EVENT/Fashion Show which is on Monday, May 6. Any help you are able to offer will be greatly appreciated. If you are interested, please contact Robin Prager at Robin.Prager@gmail.com.

Let's enjoy the calm of February, so we will be ready to participate in our exciting future events, making Sisterhood the terrific organization it is!

News from Isaiah 58

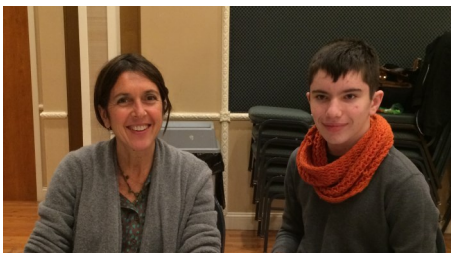

Do you have a birthday coming up? Perhaps you have an anniversary or special date in the next few months. Many times throughout the year, I celebrate events, big and small, with a meaningful donation to the Isaiah 58 Social Action Committee. This charitable donation helps our committee members continue the mission to feed the hungry in our community and it lifts my spirit. Sometimes on my birthday, I choose to eat at home and send in the money that a fancy dinner would have cost me. Plus, my husband is an excellent cook! To remember my loved ones who have passed on, sometimes I offer a donation in their memory and know they would be proud. A simcha, new baby, engagement, promotion or wedding in your life? All good reasons to give recognition and make a donation.

To me, the monthly efforts of our members are astounding! With generous donations from our congregation and the time we put in, hundreds of individuals and families are given an abundance – of pantry food, sandwiches, baby supplies, Bags of Fun, handmade hats and scarves, and time spent with caring individuals who provide entertainment like Bingo and music at Gurwin, and education, crafts, snacks and loving camaraderie for young girls at the Brentwood Youth Facility. If you can donate your time, join us and be part of enduring mission. If you are unable to join us in person, please consider a charitable donation and specify the reason you are motivated to give. See how your gift is passed on by the good works of the Isaiah 58 group.
