

It's that time again!

Fr. Eric and I will be back outside for Porch Sittin'!

Although, I guess we should call it "Portico Sittin'", right?

Every Wednesday, starting on September 14th, from 9am to 10am, you can join either me or Fr. Eric for some casual conversation.

We'll be seated on one of the new rocking chairs by the new parish hall, enjoying the view of the Labyrinth and the water.

All are welcome—no reservations or RSVP required! And there's no agenda planned. Come to say hi, come with a question, or just come to relax.

Fr. Eric, Deacon Pam, and I will take turns sitting outside, so you never know who will be out there!

I always love getting to sit outside. If people stop, then I get to say hi and have meaningful conversation. If no one shows up, then I get to sit outside and read and listen to the birds and the children playing across the street. Both options sound absolutely wonderful!

While I have your attention, save the date: Fr. Eric and I are working on a new worship service. We'll be promoting it more as we get closer to the first service...

For now, I hope we'll see you on Saturday, November 5, at 5pm, for a quiet, prayerful Celtic worship service.

Leading up to the first service, Fr. Eric and I will also be leading an adult formation class on Celtic Spirituality. Check below for more details (It's in the Faith Formation article!)

And since it's right around the corner: I can't wait to see everyone back here on Sunday, September 11, for Homecoming Sunday!

Don't forget a dish to share (per the Parish Life article below)

I wonder what I'll be inspired to make...
