THE IMPORTANCE OF KINDNESS

There is A LOT going on in this Parsha. But there's one particular lesson to be learned in regards to Mitzvot between man and his fellow man (or woman). Hashem wants us to be especially nice to three groups of people: A Ger (convert), widows and orphans. We must be kind to a non-Jew who becomes a Jew. Many times a Ger is alone in the world since he/she has abandoned his/her family and friends to become a Jew. A Ger might be very sensitive about not really being an "original" part of Klal Yisroel. Hashem wants us to remember what it felt like when we were strangers in Mitzrayim. We might take our Judaism for granted, as we were born with it. But a Ger has to work very hard to become a Jew, and deserves respect (and at the very least kindness) for his/her journey.

Widows & orphans also command our kindness. They are used to being protected by the security of their family. Now that their family has been pulled apart, they feel all alone, and in some cases they are without any other family & are literally alone. The Torah wants us to take care of all people who are weak or helpless. It gives us the specific examples of an orphan & a widow as they might be more obvious. However our acts of kindness (chesed) should not end with them. We should strive to show compassion to anyone who has been through a trying and difficult time. On a deeper level one can say that eventually almost all of us become orphans, and therefore the Torah is commanding us to continually be kind (and altruistic ;) to each other.

“Quote of the Week”

“If water, which is so soft, can wear away a hard rock, surely a little Torah can get into my hardened heart.”

-Rabbi Akiva (before he became a great Rav)

DID YOU KNOW.....

Did you know that Herod the Great was quite controversially "great"? While Herod had great political relationships with Marc Antony & Augustus Caesar and was probably the greatest builder in ancient Jewish history (e.g. Masada, the revised Second Temple, Caesarea) he also killed

A LOT of his own family. First he had his young Kohen Gadol brother-in-law, Aristobulus III, killed. Herod feared the popular High Priest might be made king. Next he killed his own wife in a fit of rage and jealousy. Finally, later in life he had his own sons killed as he feared they were plotting to overthrow him. Ultimately Herod ruled for 33 controversial years before dying in the year 4 BCE.

MIDDLE RIDDLE ??????

THE FIRST KID WHO TELLS YONI THE ANSWER GETS $3 MM, THE SECOND GETS $2, & THE THIRD GETS $1- NO TELLING THE ANSWER!

One verse has all the letters of the Hebrew aleph-bet
It might be hard to find, it sure ain't no sweat
So look in Shemot in a place where the Jews did eat
And you might be able to accomplish this difficult feat

Last Week-

With Yitro's it's said I used to advise
I was in Egypt and heard the babies cries
In a list of Tanach you might look
Mine is the name of a biblical book
A- Iyov (Job)
