

The First Nations University of Canada is offering up their eLearning opportunity; "An Introduction to Understanding Indigenous Perspectives in Canada" is free of charge between June 1 and July 15. Please access the course via this link: <https://www.fnuniv.ca/partnerships/reconciliation/>

More about the course from the First Nations University of Canada website:

"In partnership with BMO and Reconciliation Education, FNUniversity is bringing this introductory eLearning opportunity to organizations & communities across Canada. The eLearning course is a free public resource for all Canadians and is available June 1st to July 15th, 2021 in recognition of National Indigenous History Month.

The First Nations University of Canada supports the Truth and Reconciliation Commission of Canada Calls to Action recommendations. Through this partnership, we can build upon and promote healing, equity, and respect for/of Indigenous cultures and values in Canadian Society.

Taking action towards understanding Indigenous perspectives can lead to reconciliation, better relationships, and various opportunities when it comes to the economy, community partnerships, the environment, business, and beyond.

This course is just the first step on the journey to understanding. We encourage all participants to seek further learning opportunities either with Indigenous Peoples in your own region or at First Nations University of Canada."