Wapiti's Website Features New Browse Tool for Patron Use

Wapiti's website has a convenient new tool for those looking for specific reading materials. The new Browse feature allows patrons to choose a pre-selected category, then either search for specific items within that category or use filters such as age group, geographic region, or language.

Found beneath the "Explore" tab at www.wapitilibrary.ca, the newly created browsers are: Audiobooks, Graphic Novels, Indigenous, Large Print, Local History, and Multilingual.

Click on the browse names to open the tool. To access the Indigenous browse, first click on the "Indigenous Content" link, then scroll down to the Saskatchewan Public Library Indigenous Material section and click on the link there.

Because the Browse tool is continually pulling material from the entire, province-wide public library catalog, as new materials become available, they automatically add to the number of items available in any of the browses on our website.

For example, the Local history browse pictured at left contains 3310 items to browse (or search) through. Every time a patron visits this browse, there may be many more items due to public libraries all over the province continually adding new material for patron access and enjoyment.

Wapiti's website is designed to serve our patrons and this new tool is one more way to achieve that goal.
