

FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE

Council of Industry of Southeastern New York Welcomes Ciara McEneany as Member Services Coordinator

The Council of Industry of Southeastern New York is pleased to welcome Ciara McEneany as its new Member Services Coordinator. In this role, Ciara will support the Council's mission to strengthen and connect the region's manufacturing community by streamlining member services, improving communication, and helping to highlight the successes of member companies and programs.

Ciara brings a strong background in communications to the position. She previously worked as a reporter for the Pittsburgh Post-Gazette, where she covered a range of topics and developed a reputation for clear, effective storytelling. A graduate of the University of Vermont, she is eager to apply her skills to advancing the Council's commitment to delivering exceptional value to its members.

"Providing meaningful member value is at the heart of everything we do," said Johnnieanne Hansen, CEO of the Council of Industry. "Ciara's work will ensure members have a clear path to the resources and programs that matter most, while also helping us share our message and highlight the stories of manufacturers across the region."

The Council of Industry, based in Newburgh, has been the manufacturer's association for the Hudson Valley since 1910. The organization provides advocacy, workforce development, training, networking, and resources to strengthen the manufacturing sector and support economic growth across the region.
