It's not about one.

It also reinforced the belief that the success of the CCCIA isn't about who the president is, and frankly not about any given individual. The CCCIA's success comes from a team of people starting with a great staff and strong board, it's also about its past presidents that gave of their time when I needed it, the sponsors that support us, the speakers that are willing to educate us, the respect that this organization has gained from the city, though we have a ways to go, and last but not least, it's about our membership. Its gratifying to see a member step up to the plate and offer their time and treasure. It's also gratifying to directly solve a member's problem. We have tacked issues that have faced us and continue to work on other issues that directly affect our industry. That's what the CCCIA is all about, strength in numbers and being that strong voice for its members.

I trust that you will all give Marty McClain the same support I received as your president. It has been my privilege to serve and hopefully, I contributed in making the CCCIA just a bit stronger. I hope to join the team of past presidents who are still around helping this organization that they and I believe in.

Sincerely,
Ed Ramos
